HAS GONE

To Wash His Feet Near Montague, Mich.

DOWIE ALIAS ELIJAH.

Editor of The Ashtabula Beacon-Record in a Humorous Manner. Shows up the Prophet in his True Colors.
Grants Anything his Dopes Ask of Him.

The announcement comes that John Alexander Dowie, recently elected by an overwhelming majority on his own count, Elijah II, has gone to wash his feet. By special message from White Lake, near Montague, Mich., the prophet informs his followers that his pediculations may occupy him for two weeks. This is strong testimony against the prophet's feet, but disinterested observers are inclined to the view that whatever the condition of his pedal extremities, his heart and spirit are in more urgent need of thorough ablution.

Dowie promises his dupes a wonderful "transformation" when he returns.
He is likely using that brand of soap daily advertised from Zion's pulpit.
The daily dings of this focal point of American superstition and folly are clearly parodied by a Chicago writer.
Elijah II is shown in his true colors.
The writer thus adds to the Dowie lies.

"Greeting, Ye Slaves, Destined Soon to Bow Your Dusty Necks to the Might of Zion. We are going to be it. We are going to run the world, and the tag of Zion shall wave high above all the trumpet banners of the soon-to-be-extinguished nations.
Ah, what a reward it will be for the faithful—and it cannot fail to come.
The Overseer has said so. We, the extremely faithful, who deserve something held a meeting today."

Elijah II is described as asking what each of his dupes wanted when the earth should be theirs:
"I would like," said Elder Spiper, "to be czar of Russia." "Have you got $9 about you?" asked the Great One. "I have," said the elder. "Exactly," said the Master. "and I will give you an official stamped writ of censorship, enable the very minute we take possession of the earth. What would you like, Brother Liever?" "I would rather like," said I modestly, "to have J. Pierpont Morgan's job."
"It is yours," said the Overseer. "If you have 60 cents you are not using."
"I paid, and shall soon handle the finances of the world," Sister Blatz said she wanted to be a Cleopatra and ride up and down the river in a golden barge. It cost the sister $11 to have this wish gratified, and she is now busy cutting up cheese-cloth and sponges for the costume. Everybody wanted to be something big, and everybody got what was desired, on payment of whatever was in their jeans.

Great, indeed, is Dowie, but greater still will be no doubt be in the eyes of schemers, idiots, hapless victims and raving fanatics when he returns from White Lake, with feet cleansed, it may be, but heart as corrupt and purpose as degrading and demoralizing as ever afflicted a country or darkened a human generation. It is certainly almost inevitable that in an intellectual community, among a reading, thoughtful people, any man with a record so vile, claims so preposterous, and greed so monstrously capacious, should flourish. But flourish does John Alexander Dowie, and flourish he will continue until the law of State or Nation, or both step in to protect his victims, actual and prospective, from their own folly. Slavery in its worst forms presented nothing more degrading than Dowieism.

Disorderly House.

A complaint was laid against Geo.
Shrodes, who runs a saloon in the Mitchell building, for running a disorderly house. Mrs. Condon who conducts a millinery store, near there laid in the complaint, as it was very annoying to her business. The case was set for Tuesday and a number of witnesses were subpoenaed, but things took a turn just before the time for the case to come off, and it was compromised by the defendant paying the costs, which amounted to $6.50, and promising to run a more orderly house in the future. The defense was represented by attorney Harry Armstrong, of Xenia.

Do you know Madame Qui Vive?

Probably you do, for Mrs. Qui Vive has a national reputation as an inspiring friend to every woman with a beauty woe. Her "Woman Beautiful" department in the daily and Sunday issues of The Chicago Record-Herald is a perennial source of joyous helpfulness to womankind. Her instructions on complexion ills are in-terlarded here and there with snappy little epigrams as "cheerers." The weapons she suggests to beauty seekers for the complete annihilation of beauty grievances do not include artificial methods—"factory" frezings, rouge and other horrors being barred. She gives instructions on correct breathing, how to eat, how to bathe—in brief, how to become a healthy, wholesome woman. No wonder she is popularly known to many thousands of women.

Painful Eye.

Mr. Ed Hastings, of the firm of Kerr & Hastings Bros, met with quite an accident on Wednesday. In some manner not quite exactly known, Mr.
Hastings happened to get some gravel in his left eye, and it was thought that the particles had all been taken out, but not so, and some of the remaining particles ground into the eye-ball. The patient suffered severe pain Wednesday night. The eye is in a bad condition but is not thought serious.

Ordinance Passed.

At a meeting of the Jamestown council on Monday night, the prohibitory ordinance for the closing of saloons was passed without a dissenting vote. It will go into effect ten days after its publication, after which time the saloons will have to shut up and quit business. The council at Jamestown has acted very honorable with the people as each member.

KNAINE'S HEADACHE CAPSULES were the first headache capsules put on the market. Their immediate success resulted in a host of imitations, containing antipyrine, chloral, morphine and other injurious drugs, purporting to be "just as good." Avoid these imitations and insist on your having Knaime's, which speedily cures the most severe cases and leaves no bad after effects. Price 25c. Sold by C. M. Ridgway.

No Closing Ordinance.

Upon investigation we find that the town has no closing ordinance for the saloons, something which nearly all other towns have, and something badly needed here, as some of our saloons are continuing business after midnight, especially is this so on Saturday nights. Now as the local option matter has been tabled as it were, we would suggest that the council make some effort towards controlling these places.

The screen ordinance has been a success in South Charleston, and we don't see why it would not be a success here. It would undoubtedly have a tendency to stop this loud and boisterous talk if there were no screens and passers-by given an opportunity to view the crowd.

While the saloon business is legalized and protected by our laws, yet the council has the power to put heavy restrictions upon it to bring it within the bounds of decency.

Up to a few months ago our saloon proprietors were very quiet, courteous men, and some are yet, but we have one house that has caused more trouble in the last six months than have all the rest in nearly that many years. This place is unfit for any one to be neighbor to or even pass for at most any moment, some foul mouthed drunken reprobate is liable to wabble towards the sidewalk and come in direct contact with the pedestrian.

We know how many members of council feel about this matter, as the corporation has at various times spent several hundred dollars in trying to prosecute such violations of the law, and what have we reaped? The case could easily be disposed of here in the proper manner, but after it reached the county courts it went, we know not where, yet we think we are safe in making the assertion the men we have in office at the present time are not of the same stamp as were the former officers.

In taking up such fights, as has been stated, more than the moral side of the question must be considered, and that is straight business principles, which often appeals to most men.
Although the two can be worked to a good advantage but must be handled with discretion.

Bathing the Mules.

The paper mill mules were given a bath Thursday morning at the portion of the creek known as the "dix," in the old stone quarries east of town.
To one who has never witnessed the process of bathing it forms quite an amusing spectacle. A few of them went through the process without much trouble but some of the younger ones put up a fight, and are only taken through the mill after considerable persuasion. One of the teamsters mount the animal and proceeds for the water, here they are ridden to the deepest part of the creek and the animal is forced to swim. The boys had considerable fun in getting them into the deep places and ducking them.
The mule certainly enjoy it after they once enter the water.

HEARTBURN.

When the quantity of food taken is too large or the quality too rich, heartburn is likely to follow, and especially so if the digestion has been weakened by constipation. Eat slowly and not too freely of easily digested food. Masticate the food thoroughly. Let six hours elapse between meals and when you eat eat lightly and weight in the region of the stomach after eating, indicating that you have eaten too much, take one of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the heartburn may be avoided. For sale by C. M. Ridgway.

Mr. Ed Nisbet and Miss Pauline Ross quietly slipped away last Thursday to Richmond, Ind., where they were married. The marriage was kept a secret until a few days ago when it leaked out. The couple will likely go to house keeping within the next week.

COUNCILMAN

McLean Offers His Resignation.

BUT NOT ACCEPTED.

Local Option at a Standstill.—Cedarville Cheese Attracts a Good Attendance.

The regular meeting of the council was held Monday evening, all members being present. Considerable business was transacted. The usual monthly bills were read and allowed.
Reports of the different committees were read and accepted. The most important of all was the report of the special committee on the local option question. The committee consisted of McLean, Dean and Northrup. Their report read as follows:

Cedarville, O., July 8, 1901.
The Hon. Mayor and Village Council: Your Special Committee to take under advisement the Petition by citizens of the village, asking for a prohibitory law against saloons, would respectfully refer the matter back to council and recommend that the matter be submitted to a vote of the voters of the village.

John W. McLean
W. W. Northrup
C. W. Dean.

Upon motion by Andrew the latter part was stricken out, that which referred to the special election, as no provision was made for bearing the expense of same, and he did not think the corporation should stand it. The matter is now where it was several months ago.

Councilman McLean offered his resignation, owing to his business distress being such that he could not devote any time to municipal affairs.
However when a vote was taken there were three nays and two ayes. It seems as though this was only a complimentary vote as the other members promised to take it up at the next meeting.

The next matter before the honorable body, and that to which caused a number of our citizens to become so interested in just one council meeting was the introduction of Cedarville cheese. This product had been before the honorable body for several hours and was the source of many per remarks from both members and auditors. Mayor Wolford made a neat speech accepting the cheese from Messrs Gibson and Postle, and denominated the genial corporation clerk to cut the first cheese. As was suggested by several members of council the cheese was cut into eight parts.
"Cork" is an old hand at this business, but like all professionals in this line could hardly refrain from putting the knife to his proboscis to see if it was still green. The members of council with the Mayor and Clerk then indulged in the fancies to their fullest extent, while the audience was attentive but looked with a vicious eye.
Some remained but a number left and did not come in for a share.

BY THE WAY.

The other day a number of women had gathered at a neighbors' for, well we did not learn, but never-the-less during the afternoon while the ladies were discussing the affairs of the nation, a mouse made its appearance, and then the crowd was in a perfect uproar. Tables, chairs and everything in the room was soon put into use in order to escape from the wanderings of this little monster. One of the ladies remarked after everything had quieted down, that she thought she should be congratulated for not screaming, and so she ought. So then the women themselves, realize how silly they act on such occasions.

The time of year is at hand for bathing and certainly the boys of town are enjoying it to their fullest extent, some going down after noon and staying the remainder of the day. A number of jokes have been told, but the latest is that a mother did not desire her son to go near the dangerous spot, and informed him thus: "Now don't you go near that water 'till you know how to swim."

While making our rounds a few days ago we came across a man who had difficulty in remembering things he was told to do. He had rather a novel way of reminding himself, and that was by disconnecting his chain from his watch and leaving it thus till the errand was disposed of.

An exchange says that a shocking time is going on in the wheat fields of Logan county.

We noticed a peculiar circumstance some time ago in a depot restaurant.
A man was carrying a baby which seemed warm and tired. In order to please the little one the man bought it a stick of candy and at the same time bought himself a cigar. As the man proceeded to walk about carrying the infant and puffing away at his cigar, the babe, became strangled, and it seemed to puzzle the father as to the cause. Whether he found the cause or not we do not know, but the real cause was that every gulp of smoke went direct into the baby's face, causing it to strangle. How inhuman some people are towards the little ones.

The poet of the S. Charleston Echo broke out as follows:

"Fourth of July's come and gone, We're broke, and also vexed, We will not celebrate again Till Fourth of July next."

Farm hands have been very scarce this summer and farmers are experiencing considerable trouble in getting their crops up. One thing, it is good for the day laborer, as wages are some higher. We heard one man say that he was getting $1.50 per day, two meals and a horse and buggy to ride back and forth. He seemed well pleased with his job.

Some one has said that not one of the millionaires in the U. S. can write poetry. It might truthfully be added that not one of the poets of this country is a millionaire.

DRUGGIST TAKES CUSTOMER'S ADVICE.
Mound City, Kan., Oct. 22, '00.

Dear Sir:—I wish to add my endorsement and recommendation as to the merits of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup of Peppin. I have sold it as a druggist and it always gives satisfaction, and my customers are loud in its praise.
I myself had been troubled with my stomach, and hearing so many of my customers speaking of Syrup Peppin, I tried it, with the result it cured my trouble. I unhesitatingly recommend Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Peppin as a laxative and stomach remedy.
Yours, J. M. Hawkins.

All Should Read It.

The Xenia Republican this week contains an editorial, "We Must do Something," and much credit is due Brother Marshall. If time and space would permit we would be pleased to reproduce the entire article, but such is not the case, and we earnestly hope that each loyal citizen may have the privilege of reading this strong discourse. Although it was written principally for Xenia, it can easily be applied here.

The following is from the article:
"The remedy for a bad state of affairs consequent upon violations of the law is involved in no obscurity.
If such a state of affairs exists, as undoubtedly it does, the blame rests as far as it can rest, upon the moral law-abiding and upright citizens themselves. In the present instance it can be traced directly to their doors.
What right have these good people to complain when they join hands with the evil-doers themselves over the ballot-box? It is not the business of the people generally to execute the laws, but it is their business, if they want the laws executed, to elect men who will execute them.

The "something" that we must do, if we want something done, is as clear as the noon-day sun, and not until it is done will the liquor, gambling and other laws and ordinances be of any avail. Tom, Dick and Harry will not execute the law, no matter what sign they may hold out to catch votes, or what church their wives or mother-in-laws belong to, unless their hearts are in the business. It is the business, my duty, of all good citizens, to see to it, that men of intelligence, of ability, and, above all, men of sound principles and moral rectitude be elected to office, and when they do not see to it that such men are elected, but scatter their votes among Tom, Dick and Harry, more especially when they link their votes with the evil-doers themselves, they should blame nobody but themselves.

CONDENSED STORIES.

Wanted: Mate Salubry to Salute His First Advance Agent.

It was raining cats and dogs when Salubry and Major Burke of the Buffalo Bill Wild West aggregation left the transport at Barcelona, and the latter, when half way down the gangplank, removed his hat, says the New York Press. "Put on your hat, Burke. Your head is getting wet," urged the manager. "Look there," said the major. "Where? I don't see anything." "There, there, man! I don't see anything but rain. Put your hat on." "What, keep my hat on in the presence of that?" "But you're getting soaked, man. Don't stand there like a fool. Put your hat on." "Never! Not while in that noble presence." "Now, John, you're going crazy." "But, man, don't you see it? Can't you recognize it?" "The only thing I see is a statue of Columbus. What of it?" "My dear fellow, can you ask what it is? Why, he's been your advance agent for 400 years!"

WHY HE'S BEEN YOUR ADVANCE AGENT FOR FOUR HUNDRED YEARS.

Butler's Clincher.

"I think General Butler was the best posted man on all questions before Congress I ever saw," said an ex-congressman to the New York Sun. "Now and then some congressman inferior to him in brains and information got the advantage of him, but he more often came off victorious in that arena. He and Sam Cox once got into one of those long running debates on the floor of Congress, each then putting questions to the other in the most pertinent and brilliant way. It was Damascus blade against Damascus blade. At last Cox put some worrying question to him, leaving his seat to do so, with a gleam in his eye as if saying, 'Now, old fellow, I've got you where you must confess or surrender.' Butler, being tired of the badgering, turned on him as a lion does on his prey and said, 'Shoo fly, don't bother me.' From the very manner in which it was said and coming upon the house so unexpectedly the house burst into one prolonged laugh. Right there and then, as Uncle Remus says, 'Cox lost his money bag, and he walked as if an ice shower bath had fallen suddenly on his little person. Butler walked over and congratulated him upon his defeat. Both had a good laugh over it, and both retired at once, as if hunting some place that Mrs. Nation would smash with a hatchet.'"

Mark Twain's Discount.

A good story is told of Mark Twain and a bookseller's clerk. Twain was formerly a partner in a publishing firm, and one day he went into a bookstore, and, picking up a book, he asked the clerk the price of it. He then said that as a publisher he was entitled to 50 per cent discount. The clerk told him that was all right, and then Twain said: "And as I am also an author I am entitled to 50 per cent discount for that reason, am I not?" To this also the clerk assented. "Then I am a personal friend of the proprietor's, and I presume you will allow me the usual 25 per cent discount on that score." Again the clerk bowed assent. "Under those conditions I think I will take the book," said the humorist. "How much?" "The clerk said, 'It amounts to nothing with this power and then said, without allowing a smile to intrude upon the solemnity of the occasion: "As I figure it we owe you this book and 37 1/2 cents in money. We shall be glad to have you call again.'"

Philosophical Mr. James.

Henry James was once praising the work of a fellow author. "You are very kind to him," said some one present, "for he says very unpleasant things about your work." "Ah," said Mr. James, "but, then, both of us may be wrong."

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

Four Mountain Lions Made His Hair Stand on End.

I was in the mountains of Idaho with a friend and we ran short of fresh meat, so one day I took my gun and started off alone. I went into a ravine and was making my way along a little brook, when I came suddenly upon a queer sight. Not four feet in front of me, in the full blaze of the sun, lay four mountain lions asleep.

For half a minute I thought them dead, but as I stood staring at them with my heart in my mouth every one of them sprang up with a growl. Then they faced round at me, looking ugly, sniffing the air with their whiskers drawn back, showing the white line of their teeth, switching their tails and looking like demons. As for me, I stood rooted to the spot. I couldn't move, from sheer fright. A queer numb sensation began in my ankles and crept up my body, and I literally felt my hair rise.

I stood there motionless for several minutes; then one of the beasts dropped his tail and whined. The others followed his example. My presence mystified them. A few seconds later they turned about and crept away down the ravine, looking back stealthily two or three times to see me.

When they were out of sight, I began to breathe again. I didn't care to hunt any more that day and made for the camp at top speed. That was the time my hair stood on end, and my scalp was sore to the touch for a week afterward—St. Louis Republic.

The Game of Duck and Drake.

Duck and drake is played by chipping bits of slate, the flat shells of oysters, or thin smooth stones, on the surface of a pond. Whatever is used should be thrown so that it may merely touch the surface of the water, otherwise it will not rebound several times, which is the aim of the player to make it do. If it rebounds only once, it is a "dick," twice, a "duck," if thrice, a "dick, duck and drake." That player wins the game whose slate rebounds the most often.

A Peculiar People.

On the banks of the Purus in South America dwells a peculiar tribe of people who are spotted in a very queer manner. All members of the tribe are similar in this respect: men, women and children being mottled black and white. They live almost entirely on fish.

A Boy's School Record.

It is an honorable achievement for a boy whose school life has extended over a period of nearly 11 years never to have missed a single attendance throughout the whole of that time, yet this is the unique record possessed by Master Abel Roberts of Llangollen, England. He was admitted into the infants' department of the board school in that town in 1888, when he was only 3 years of age. From the infants' school he duly passed into that of the seniors. Altogether, for ten years and nine months he was present both morning and afternoon with unerring regularity and punctuality, not even being compelled to absent himself from his school duties on one single occasion through illness.

Another boy in the same school boasts a similar record for six years. Can any of our American boys show as clean a record for school attendance?—American Boy.

Early in the Morning.

Over the hills in the background, over so far away, have morning been and her babies, speckled and white and gray. Quite, quite early in the morning these children are not asleep. Good morning then and her babies! Hunt for something to eat. When suddenly morning has arisen! "Chick, chick, chick, chick, chick! I have found a worm, my darling! Come quick and eat him up!" And then the children are awake. And when the sun comes out again they are about to play. And they are eating little worms. And happy are they.

Between Courses.
The Armenian restaurants serve a between courses preparation which is particularly refreshing in hot weather and which might with advantage be added to American bills of fare. Prunes, figs and dates of the finest brands are rinsed thoroughly and are then soaked in a quantity of cold water until they regain their original plumpness. The water is then turned off and saved, and boiling water, enough to cover the fruit, is poured over it. This is allowed to stand on the fruit until it is cold, when the water in which it was soaked and the juice of a lemon, and sometimes that of an orange, are added, and the mixture is sweetened. It is then poured over cracked ice and served. The fruit juice is especially delicious, but the fruit will also be liked.

Reducing Coal Bills.
The following experiment is so simple that it may be worth the attention of many householders who find an accumulation of coal dust in their cellars: Mix three parts of ordinary garden earth with one part coal dust and pour over it a kettleful of boiling water, in which has been dissolved a little washing soda. This is the best household coal well with this mixture. After it has burned for two or three minutes the caked dust gives out a clear glow of heat and burns away much slower than large coal.

German Syrup. Is the special prescription of Dr. A. Boesche, a celebrated German Physician, and is acknowledged to be one of the most fortunate discoveries in medicine. It quickly cures Coughs, Colds and all Lung troubles of the severest nature, removing, as it does, the cause of the affection and leaving the parts in a strong and healthy condition. It is not an experimental medicine, but has stood the test of years, giving satisfaction in every case, which is rapidly increasing sales every season confirms. Two million bottles sold annually. Boesche's German Syrup was introduced in the United States in 1868, and is now sold in every town and village in the civilized world. Three doses will relieve any ordinary cough. Price 75c.
